The Center for Comparative and International Studies (CIS) at ETH Zurich invites applications for a

Post-doctoral research position in International Political Economy / International Environmental Politics

Research area:

The International Political Economy / International Environmental Politics group at the CIS is led by Prof. Thomas Bernauer (<http://www.ib.ethz.ch>). Its research and teaching focuses on political and other conditions under which environmental and economic problems that extend beyond national borders can be solved. The new Postdoc will work in collaborative research projects that focus on public opinion in the areas of international trade and environmental politics.

Your background:

You should hold a PhD in political science and/or economics. Applicants are expected to have strong methodological skills, particularly in quantitative data analysis, a keen interest in questions of political economy, excellent knowledge of political science and political economy theories, and a strong command of English. Experience with surveys and/or lab experiments is an asset.

What we offer:

We offer the successful candidate an intellectually challenging full-time position for up to five years at one of the leading political science research centers in Europe.

Your application:

Please submit a one-page letter outlining your motivation, as well as a CV and two writing samples (e.g., published articles or chapters from your dissertation) to <online application: web address>. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis. The position is available from March 2012. For further information, you may contact Prof. Thomas Bernauer at thbe0520@ethz.ch.
